Reason for surrender

I was only supposed to help a lady out and foster them for a month and it's been 4. She refuses to take them back or to take any action to have them adopted. So now this responsibility has fallen on me. I was helping a woman and her child who couldn't afford him since she lost her job and is homeless, so I agreed to help by fostering them. It was only supposed to be a month, but has turned into almost 5 months.and she can't take them back due to still being homeless and she has agreed to this. So she abandoned the with me. Unfortunately her cat and my other four cats do not get along. I can no longer take care of Bronze and Ozzy due to the strain on me and my other animals. They are about four years old and fixed. Because it is putting a strain on me and my cats.

My current living situation is...

I have a stable home.

I have read and understood the pet rehome statement.

yes

Just a few more questions...

How long have you had the animals?

4 months to 1 year

Reason(s) for concern - click all that apply.

- conflict with others
- no longer want animal

Other reason not listed

I was fostering them to help someone out and she has abandoned them.

How we can help you keep your animals?

I'm sorry but I can't. I have been fostering them for way longer than the owner said. I have four cats of my own and the fostered cats do not get along with the males. They tolerate my female cats. But unfortunately for them, my animals come first and I can't keep rotating rooms for these cats and mine. It's exhausting.
