How we can help you keep your animals?

I can't keep him. My landlord wants him gone after coming over and seeing how he acts with strangers. He is protective of his home. They are worried about insurance. I was also told he was great with children, which he was at first. But overtime he has shown me that he should not be around my 3 small children because he is too protective of my twin babies, which is not safe for my 6 year old. He needs behavioral training. I would definitely get training sessions for him if I could afford it and if my landlord did not want him out of his house. I had made an appointment before to surrender him for September 18th, but for some reason you guys called me and said you had not heard from me and canceled my surrender form.
