Reason for surrender

Our dogs have become aggressive towards each other. They have not stopped fighting and stopped getting along with each other. I am unfortunately making the decision to surrender one of them. I tried rehoming but I am running out of time. Please help me. They are good dogs they live in seperate rooms and it is too much stress for everyone including them.

My current living situation is...

I have a stable home.

I have read and understood the pet rehome statement.

How we can help you keep your animals?

Unfortunately I cannot keep my pet. We have tried training resources, tried to get them to get along multiple times and the last time we tried, I struggled to separate them. They are extremely kind, sweet and obedient with people but they test their dominance with each other and it has become dangerous in our small apartment with my toddler and now I will be due any day with my second. I have posted online on rehoming sites and have asked in my community and place of work but I have had no luck. I’m running out of time. Please help.

Admin notes

9/30/23 Owner called back stating they use to live on an acre where the dogs could roam around in the fenced in yard. They have since moved to an apartment where the dogs are now fighting with one another to the point they had to be hospitalized. Owner is worried as she has a toddler and baby on the way. Due to the situation and information from owner, euthanasia was deemed necessary. C. Wildermuth
