Reason for surrender

When not being held Parma constantly cries. Both of my Autistic daughters have noise sensitivities and though I told them to give it time and it would be better once she's used to us, that isn't the case. Unfortunately, she's very needy and needs to be held constantly or she will cry. We have waited months but it's clear this is just how she is. My daughters can't take the noise any more and it's now become a big problem for them.

My current living situation is...

I have a stable home.

I have read and understood the pet rehome statement.
